

A GRAND DAY OUT TO LEGOLAND

WHAT A GREAT DAY WE ALL HAD AT LEGOLAND!

My children are 4 and 7 and so we opted for the quiet rides and great shows around Legoland to keep us entertained. After a short time to queue on arrival to receive our tickets and gain exit passes (this allowed us to bypass the long queue's and go straight onto a ride) we had the day to ourselves.

My son spent most of his 'looking' at Lego in the shops (as this is his main interest) and was amazed at the Lego building that contained Ancient Egyptian Tombs – which is a current school topic.

My daughter, on the other hand, liked the sweet shop the best and the milkshakes made with ice cream!

For all of us as a family Legoland has so much to offer and the exit passes made the day run very smoothly for our son. The coach was great idea and it was nice not to face a drive home at the end of the day.

OASIS Member

WHAT A BRILLIANT DAY OUT TO LEGOLAND

My son is 16 years old and was so looking forward to the trip to Legoland. The coach ride was great – every time someone said 'Legoland' there was a cheer from the children!

We spent the day with two friends the same age and their mothers. We went round in a group of 6. As we were an older group we headed off for the more adventurous rides!

We rode the dragon roller coaster (twice!). Got soaked on the Viking Ride and again on the log flume. After lunch we had a race – Mums against the sons on the fire engines – putting out a lego fire. The Mums won – and we didn't cheat. We sailed boats and enjoyed the Brook fairytale ride for a rest! Later before coming home we rode the wave race and got wet again.

To finish the day we watched the 4D movie of Lego Racers. We laughed at each other wearing the 4D glasses and settled to watch the film. Many cartoon characters jumped out from the screen – and made us jump too.

The exit passes given to us on arrival meant we did not have to queue for any rides, and it made such a difference – we managed to do most of the rides in one day, and of course with our children's needs, this meant the day went smoothly.

Oh, and the best bit – off to the Lego shop. My son bought a train set and some track – we spent the following weekend building it together. Then we made our way back to the coach and had a sleep on the way home. It was good not having to drive and just rest.

This was an ideal day out for our families – something for everyone. We were made very welcome and are already planning our next visit.

OASIS Member